ABSTRACT

Did you know gifted kids are at much higher risk of existential depression and anxiety? Their expectations are always higher and very different from that of others. It is because of this cognitive gap they are more often to confront problems and attain mood swings. If the giftedness is left uncared, it may be sometimes fatal. In many cases, the needs of the gifted children are neglected with the assumption that these children can manage themselves. The main aim of this article is to focus the learning difficulties faced by the gifted children and how they can be treated by parenting and providing proper classroom activities.